The hose supporters are so placed on this Corset as to secure the best figure style.

Remarkably good Corset value for $1.

JURY TAKES CASE UNDER ADVISEMENT

Argument Concluded in Wallen Matter and Adjournment Had.

Arguments in the now famous Wallen case was completed in the Chancery Court yesterday afternoon, and the members were adjourned over until next Monday morning.

After the jury had deliberated for a while Judge Grinnell called them in, and the foreman said they had not yet reached any conclusion.

His Honor said he had to leave town for a few days, and suggested that the jury be called back to-morrow. Some of the members however voted that they be allowed until Monday, as they were very busy. The court agreed, and excused the members until Monday, after issuing the usual injunction that they must not suffer any one, other than relatives, to discuss the case with them.

The case has been hotly contested from the start, and the argument on both sides was able. Hon. C. A. Throckmorton and Hon. J. H. Halligan represented the heirs of the late James Wallen, who are seeking to upset his will; while Messrs. Pollard and Pollard looked after the interests of the defendant widow.

The amount involved in the matter is about $3,000.

STUART FOR CONGRESS.

"Long Tom" Haynes Says He Can Redeem Ninth District.

Capitol Commissioner G. W. (Long Tom) Haynes has arrived at a visit to his home in Dickenson county, and while in the Southwest he made some observations concerning the political situation in the Ninth Congressional District. "You never saw such business prosperity as obtains back in the mountains," said Mr. Haynes. "Every body's apparently happy and doing well."

"As to politics, the Democrats are talking about a man to run for Congress, and it seems to be the consensus of opinion that Corporation Commissioner Henry C. Stuart, of Russell, would be an ideal candidate. If we can get Mr. Stuart to run," concluded Mr. Haynes, "we believe he will win, and that is the kind of a man the Ninth District Democrats need for their leader at the time."

DR. A. B. FITZPATRICK SUCCUMBS TO AGE

Prominent Citizen, Physician and Former Legislator Dies in Nelson County.

News was received here yesterday of the death at his home near Nelly's Ford in Nelson county, Sunday night of Dr. Alex. B. Fitzpatrick, for many years a prominent physician; seven or eight times a member of the House of Delegates, and a popular and prominent citizen. Dr. Fitzpatrick was about seventy-five years of age, and was sick for only a few hours.

He came of a prominent family, and was from his early manhood a power in his section. As a graduate of the Medical College of Virginia he entered the Com-

HON. A. B. FITZPATRICK.
(The "Gray Eagle of the Nelson Democracy.")

Indicate service on the staff of General Eliot, and was with him in all the strenuous campaigns that followed in Southwest Virginia. Dr. Fitzpatrick was perhaps the most prominent medical physician of his country in his day and generation, and was greatly beloved by his people.

He took an active part in political affairs, and was for either seven or eight terms the member of the House of Delegates from his county.

He served in the Legislature years ago with men of the type of Judge S. B. Witt of this city; the late General William H. Payne, of Pasquier, and others, and was regarded by them all as a strong man. Later, he came to the House almost whenever he desired, and remained out his career in the sessions of 1867-1888 and 1890-1900.

Dr. Fitzpatrick was well known throughout the State, and counted among his close friends in latter years Judge John H. Ingram, Hon. Harry St. George Tucker, and others.

He died on Tuesday, at his residence, 101 Harrison Street, April 17th, at 12:30 A. M. JOHN COTTHILL, aged forty-four years.

MME. MODJESKA SAID FAREWELL

The Great Actress Was Only a Ghost of Bygone Years.

THE PLAY NOT A SUCCESS

A Small Audience Was Disappointed—Stage Was Ill-Set. It Was Sad.

Mme. Helena Modjeska appeared for the last time in Richmond last night, according to her manager's announcement, in Mary Stuart, Shiller's great tragedy.

That it was a worthy performance, no one can deny, but there was about it only the faintest glimmer of the greatness of other days, like the perfume of rose leaves, long after the rose has withered.

Mme. Modjeska, one of the greatest actresses that the American stage ever presented, has grown old with the honors of many triumphs and it would have been far pleasanter for her to have been remembered later in her life, as a reminder of what may have been forced to add sentimentality to admiration, on account of this unhappy "farewell tour."

There is something painfully sad and unpleasant about "farewells," for there is, to say the least, an intimation of decay and a suggestion of collapse, & the mere mention.

The play last night was staged in a manner that fully bore out the idea of "farewell," for some of the scenery was ancient and the rest was out of keeping, and in bad taste—an unmistakable sign of no future.

Miss Loretta Wells, as "Queen Elizabeth"; Mr. William Hazelton, as "Leicester," and Mr. Edwin Caldwell, as "Maturin," all played well and deserve an especial word of praise.

Mme. Modjeska, not to be unduly showed the weight of her 62 years, and while the spirit was willing, the flesh was weak.

Only a small audience witnessed the play and the applause that marked the fall of the curtain was not enthusiastic.

Maid and the Mummy.

"The Maid and the Mummy," Richard Carle's most successful musical piece might well have been named "The Maid and the Mummy," for there is only one mummy to thirty girls in the cast. The management has been careful to take only the prettiest girls for the chorus that is to present this merry musicale mélange, and there never were more lovely girls than the Poster Girls, the Polly Girls, the Julie Girls and the Automobile Girls. The book of "The Maid and the Mummy" is by Richard Carle, the music being by Robert Hood Bowens.

The story is an interesting one and the comedy is only interrupted when one of the seventeen musical interludes is being sung. Of the musical interludes, the most popular is "Besiege Julia," "I Fell in Love with Polly," "My Gasoline Automobile," "Oh, Gee, It's Great to be Crazy" and "In the Sun."

The cast of "The Maid and the Mummy" includes: Mrs. Sarah Spy, Mrs. V. Godwin, No. 329 West Grace Street, after a long illness. The funeral will be held at the above number this afternoon (Wednesday) at 3 o'clock.

Henry county: John Francis and wife to Lee Lewis, eight acres west of Glen Allen.
